Chair's Message for October

by Jill Van Langeveld

Avenues Power

A few years ago, I went to a photography store on 200 East. I was surprised to see 4 or 5 of the staff standing by the window very interested in what was happening outside. So, I looked too. Turns out they were watching a police "sting." The store was between 200 and 300 South with a mid-block pedestrian crosswalk right in front. The police were checking to see if cars would stop for the pedestrians walking in the crosswalk. One policeman in plain clothes would walk across the street while another watched with a radio to contact a couple policemen a block away who would stop the offenders. The staff found it very entertaining watching the policeman dodge the cars and seeing those cars pulled over.

Utah law states motorists must yield to pedestrians crossing roadways within a crosswalk if the pedestrian is "on the half of the roadway upon which the vehicle is traveling" or "when the pedestrian is approaching so closely from the opposite half of the roadway as to be in danger."

I remembered this incident when Ann, an Avenues neighbor emailed me about her concerns for street safety. I also remembered a research project I read about in the book The Power Paradox: How We Gain and Lose Influence written by Dacher Keltner, a psychologist at University of California at Berkeley. He has some very interesting theories on power, how to get it and what it does to a person when he has power.

He talked about gaining power in two ways – (1) Coercion Power -- using force or threats and (2) Reputational Power -- using ideas, friendship, and respect. Reputational or Soft Power is actually more powerful. However, their studies have shown that once a person gets power, he/she tends to be less empathetic, losing the ability to react to people's emotions and becoming less interested in other people. Power can make us more "self-focused". "This can happen to us all. It is just what the mind does when we feel powerful. Power" he says, "is part of every moment of our social lives. We've got to be aware of it. It can lead us to do foolish things, and we should try to do the things that make it a force for good."

One of their experiments he called the "crosswalk experiment." Dr. Keltner came up with the idea when he was biking to work and was almost hit by a black Mercedes. "I thought it'd be really interesting to test these ideas about the impulsive actions that power produces by looking at how people drive."

They put an undergraduate at a pedestrian crossing zone right next to the Berkeley campus. Another student was coding – making note of the make of the car and whether the car stopped for the pedestrian or blazed right through. They replicated this experiment many times in many different states. Their findings: 0% of drivers in cheap cars "blazed" through while 46.2% of drivers in expensive cars did not stop for pedestrians who had the right of way.

After he published the results of this experiment, Dr. Keltner said he's had emails from all over. One of his favorites was from a Prius driver who said that he was not surprised by Mercedes drivers, but Prius drivers abide by the law. "So we checked and the Prius drivers were actually the worst."

We were with friends one time sharing our pet peeves about drivers and pedestrians. A psychologist in the group commented that when pedestrians, particularly if poorly dressed, crossed late, they were probably experiencing the only time in their lives when they could exert power over someone else. I don't get frustrated by them anymore.

Now, let me get back to Ann's concerns about street safety. Each of us wields power whether we walk, ride or drive. Think about it. Are you going to be "self-focused" or "empathetic" as you move through the Avenues? How will you use your power?

Avenues Street Fair Was a Big Success!

WOW! I can't believe another year has passed, but what a wonderful Avenues tradition! We continually get voted as one of Salt Lake City's best neighborhood activities and this year's Street Fair didn't disappoint. As we feverishly set up two stages for the bands and 200 booths in the dark at 6am, we knew it was the makings of a busy day. Kicking off the day's festivities the Children's Parade was as lively as ever; the energy was contagious and brought smiles and cheers from everyone. Throughout the day, I continually ran into you, my friends and neighbors, only to hear how wonderful the day and how appreciative you were that this event exists. It wouldn't exist without you - the community, and all of you that generously donated your time. Thank you to our many volunteers (listed on pg. 4) who spent countless hours planning, and selecting just the right mix of food, entertainment, and artistic talent to make this year's event a hit for everyone.

Our featured artist, Gunter Radinger, created a wonderful piece of art that truly represented our home, the Avenues. I loved seeing people during the fair carrying the totes as I walked up and down 2nd Avenue.

I also want to thank our numerous corporate sponsors, vendors, churches, etc., each of which donated in various ways. We would not be able to do this without them. An even bigger thank you to our friends and neighbors on 2nd Avenue; you helped us throw the party of the year and we couldn't think of a more picturesque venue than your front yard. The transformation of 2nd Avenue over a 24-hour period was an incredible sight to see. I want to thank everyone who participated in planning the event as well as those who helped with day-of activities. The Avenues Street Fair is all about community. It is truly one of the things I love most about our neighborhood. The Street Fair is the annual fundraiser for the Greater Avenues Community Council. As mentioned, it was a great success! We have added funds to continue our involvement and support of our great community. Please stay tuned as we work with you to determine our next project, or submit your own ideas! Previous projects and initiatives have included the Popperton Plots Community Garden, Memory Grove Clean-up, the Avenues Community Choir, pickleball tournaments, and the Avenues Athletic Association leagues. This newsletter is also able to exist because of funds generated from the Street Fair, the support of our volunteers and the generosity of the LDS Hospital.

I know I have said it many times in this brief article, but it really cannot be said enough. Thank you to all that participated, either by helping or by attending. Be sure to mark your calendars for next year's fair - always in early September! The location? Well that's a surprise for which you'll have to wait - unless you want to help us decide, then please reach out and join us. We will start planning for next year's Fair very soon!

GACC Elections

Are there things in the Greater Avenues that you care about? The community spirit of the Street Fair, the beauty of the trees near the 4th Avenue Well, or general issues like local government, traffic, or crime? The Greater Avenues Community Council is a great way to learn about these issues and how you can act on them. Also serving on the Board or as an Officer is a great way to shape the agenda of the GACC. At October's General Meeting, the Nominating Committee will present a slate of candidates. Additional candidates can be nominated from the floor.

At November's General Meeting, we vote on the slate of candidates plus any October nominees from the floor. There are no floor nominations accepted at the November meeting.

If you are interested in being on the Board or running for Officer, please contact Brian at bberkelbach@ft.newyorklife.com.

The 2020 Census

Who are we and what do we know about our communities? It's hard to believe it has been a decade, but the 2020 Census is almost upon us. The constitution mandates a count of every person living in the United States once a decade. This massive undertaking provides insights into the population and also creates impacts throughout many different avenues. In Utah, we have experienced continued growth throughout this decade. The 2020 Census will provide an opportunity for us to get a new demographic baseline of who those new Utahns are and how the state's population has changed.

The Backyard Park That Love Built

In case you have been wondering about all the heavy construction equipment down on M Street, progress is underway on the backyard park behind the Ronald McDonald House.

The long-time vision for having a beautiful green space for the pediatric patient families that stay at the House is almost a reality. Construction began in late Spring and is scheduled to proceed through the next few months.

Carrie Romano, CEO of Ronald McDonald House Charities stated, "This backyard park has been a goal of our organization for many years. To see it finally becoming a reality, based on the many generous donors we have in our community, is both humbling and incredibly exciting." "I see our current families play outside in our cement courtyard and have long dreamt of the day we can offer them a backyard greenspace while they are away from home. Now we will be able to do just that."

Ronald McDonald House Charities is extremely grateful for the support of the Avenues neighborhood around this project and looks forward to having a grand-opening party to celebrate this new backyard greenspace upon completion. For more information about the park, you can visit www.rmhcslc.org.

Survey on the 11th Avenue Park looped path

Public Lands provided a project summary for proposed improvements to 11th Avenue Park in the May 2019 issue of the Avenues Newsletter. We received several comments requesting that we make the looped path less than 6-feet wide in order to preserve a soft surface walking shoulder. Given this feedback, Parks posted signs in the park for a month to solicit park user preferences.

We asked park users what kind of path they would prefer: A) 6-foot concrete path (snow removed on the concrete path) or B) 4-Foot Concrete path with a 2-foot natural dirt shoulder (snow will be removed on the concrete path. The natural dirt surface shoulder can be used as a soft walking surface but may become muddy during inclement weather.) We received 48 responses with more than half of the respondents requesting a 4-foot concrete path with a 2-foot shoulder. Of the 48 respondents, 88% visit the park at least weekly and 70% people thought it was at least somewhat important to have a soft surface path. Public Lands revised our plans to include the community preferred option of a 4-foot concrete path.

Design for the park improvements is now complete. The Salt Lake City will request competitive bids from contractors in October with construction ensuing over the winter.
